I have the following: var odiv = $('div.div1'); $('.expand').click(function () { odiv.animate({ width: 700 }, function () { //do something }); }); Unfortunately, it doesn't work. If I remove.animate(), it works fine. I know.animate() is a jQuery function, but I am unsure why it won't work when inside.each(). A: The animation is not yet complete when the callback of the animate callback is called. It must be called after the animation is done. Evaluation of the short and long-term effects of posterior diskectomy in degenerative lumbar disc disease: the effectiveness of clinical and psychometric data. Deformity of the spine and functional limitation due to lumbar degenerative disc disease is often associated with the development of psychological problems, especially depression. Many patients with degenerative disc disease and backache also experience psychosomatic symptoms, including depression. However, the pathophysiology of such psychosomatic symptoms is still unclear. Fifty-one consecutive patients with lumbar degenerative disc disease underwent posterior diskectomy for the treatment of lower limb pain and subjective and objective functional impairment. Postoperatively, low back pain was alleviated, and there were significant improvements in the scores of psychological and functional tests, including the SF-36 and the Oswestry disability index. In particular, the patients who had a more marked reduction in the visual analog scale score for back pain demonstrated significant improvements in scores for the Beck depression inventory, total score, as well as the SF
