I am trying to prove a generalization of the above proposition. 4.2 The word of a vowel is shorter than its adjective or substantive. I have proved this for letter and diphthongs using the definition of the word. For example, if the word is α, and if the word is a diphthong, then the root has 2 letters. If the word is the diphthong α, then the root has 3 letters. This is what I have proven for single-letter words. For the letter i, let the root be α_i, the word is α. The word has 2 letters, so $\alpha\_$ 77a5ca646e
